W. J. BRYAN

The Next President of the United States

The Handwriting.

"A wave of enthusiasm is sweeping the nation for William J. Bryan. There is little doubt but that he will be the Democratic nominee for president in 1908. Indiana Democracy is not the only portion of the party which is enthusiastic over the Nebraskan. Everywhere the story is the same—a popular uprising in favor of Bryan, equal to that which characterized the popular demand for Roosevelt in 1904. The Missouri Democracy, led by that conservative, David B. Francis, a Gold Democrat, a member of Cleveland's cabinet, a supporter of Palmer and Buckner in 1896, endorsed Bryan for president in 1908. Illinois is unit for him. Even Henry Watterson with the Louisville Courier-Journal, the apparently implacable enemy of Bryan, has turned his friend and announces him as the one logical candidate for the Democrats in 1908.

"The reason of all this, the man who runs can read. Bryan has not changed since 1896, except in his attitude on the currency question, which he recognizes as a passed issue. But the people have changed. They have moved up toward Bryan's standard. He is no less radical than formerly, but the people have become more radical. What was regarded as dangerous under the regime of Mark Hanna, is now regarded as intolerable by the people. Politicians and grafters have given way to the populace, under the leadership of many honest men, and the result is to Bryan's advantage.

"The handwriting is plain. Never again will the American people tolerate such an administration as was given under the perfect machine controlled by M. A. Hanna. Nor will the people endorse at the polls the man who was chosen by the Hanna machine to succeed McKinley—had not Fate intervened—namely, C. W. Fairbanks, the machine candidate for president in 1908. If the contest is between Fairbanks and Bryan, the result will be the defeat of Fairbanks by a popular vote that will be as one-sided as the popular vote which defeated Parker in 1904. Fairbanks would lose his own state by 50,000. There would be an absolute disregard of party lines in this state, a popular uprising in favor of Bryan that would roll up a majority for him that would equal the unheard of majority given Roosevelt in 1904. The people are tired of machine politics and machine politicians. They are tired of smooth, calculating, noncommittal politicians, who represent corporations and special interest, who call graft conservatism, and deplore such exposures as those now attending the Beef Trust because it hurts business. The people want their rights, and they know that Fairbanks and his clique of machine politicians will not give them these rights. They know that in the event that Fairbanks is nominated and elected, there will be no more trust investigation, no more prosecutions, no more revelations such as are now being given the Pennsylvania system and the Beef Trust, thanks to Roosevelt. They know this because the Fairbanks boomers say so themselves. They are using the fact that Fairbanks is "conservative" as their high card. They are saying in Wall street that if Fairbanks is elected there will be no more investigations or disturbance of business, which is the same as saying there will be no more disturbance of graft. Railroads, insurance companies, the Standard Oil, the Beef Trust, all go back to their former abuses, secure in the fact that there would be no man in the White House who would believe in a square deal and honesty, and would "take off the lid" and look in. The people are getting wise. They will never stand for Fairbanks. It would be nothing short of a public calamity for him to be nominated and elected, for we would lose everything we gained under honest men. And it will mean the disruption and disintegration of the Republican party if he is nominated.

Tariff Reform in Iowa.

The position of Gov. Cummins on the tariff issue occupied the attention of the House of Representatives a few days before adjournment and the Republicans were worked up to fighting pitch by the question of Champ Clark, if Gov. Cummins had not carried Iowa on a tariff revision issue? Lacey of Iowa declared that Gov. Cummins had said nothing in regard to the tariff this year. Champ Clark retorted that last November the Governor said: "All the robberies committed by all the life insurance companies in all time did not equal one-fifth of the robberies inflicted by the Dingley bill in one year."

That was too much for the equilibrium of even that seasoned old debater Grosvenor, who lost his balance and made the following indiscreet attack upon Gov. Cummins by declaring: "Any man who will say that is unworthy of the confidence of one American citizen, let alone the majority of the States. Such a man as that is a false libeler of every decent aspiration of American citizenship." As Grosvenor is a mouth organ of the Protective Tariff League which thrives upon contributions from the tariff protected trusts, it is evident that if Gov. Cummins is nominated on a tariff revision platform the stand-patters will try and defeat him. The Democrats in Congress have had lots of fun sprinkling salt on the raw hides of the Republican stand-patters.

Leven is Working.

The people of Ohio are evidently determined to punish the trusts that conspire to restrain trade within the borders of their commonwealth. In consequence five ice dealers, who combined to raise the price of ice and who are described as "all prominent in business and social circles" have been fined $5000 each and to serve one year in the workhouse. The Democratic leven is certainly working.

Where, Oh, Where.

Senator Elkins says there is no satisfaction in having great wealth. Perhaps there is not much comfort in wealth acquired in the Elkins way, but where would Elkins and the other millionaire senators be politically without barrels of money?

Let Him Show.

A common beaver against the administration of Mayor Dollison made a remark in a business house this week, that every saloon in Logan but one is doing business right along on Sundays. Mayor Dollison here by offers that "knocker" Five Dollars in cash for any information of an open saloon or a saloon doing business in Logan on Sunday—any Sunday. Here's a chance for that common "beaver" to make a piece of money if he knows so much.

Olentangy Park.

A trip to Columbus is not complete without a visit to Olentangy Park, Theater and Zoological Garden, the big amusement resort which is the pride of the Capital City. There are so many different amusements that it would be impossible to describe them all, most every form of out door amusement can be found in the Park. The display of animals and birds is especially interesting, as is also the Japanese Village. The performances in the Theater are of the highest class, and a new bill is presented each week.

Beginning Sunday July, 15th the great Vaughan Glaser Stock Company will begin a two week's engagement in the theater which promises to attract great attention. The Stock Company is composed of the very best of talent and will include Messrs. Vaughan Glaser, Frank Camp and Robert Rogers, and the Misses Louise McIntosh and Fay Courtney, and a number of other stars in the theatrical profession. "Prince Carl" will be presented the week beginning Sunday July, 15th, and for the second week the stock company will present "What Happened to Jones".

While Olentangy is noted for its beauty in day light it is even more beautiful at night when the thousands of electric lights make the grounds appear like a fairy land.

There are more electric lights in Olentangy Park than are used in lighting the average city of twenty-five thousand inhabitants. The magnitude of the park enables it to accommodate the largest crowds, and it is not unusual for thirty thousand people to visit the Park in a single day.
